

Grant information and forms are available on the Eau Claire Community Foundation website (eccfwi.org) on the “Grant Opportunities” page under the “Lasting Impact” tab.

In a Nutshell...

Your grant proposal should clearly communicate the following information:

- Who you are
- What you want to do
- How you are going to do it
- What your intended outcomes are and how you will measure those outcomes
- How much it will cost
- How much you want the Eau Claire Community Foundation to fund (and how ECCF dollars will specifically be spent)

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

GET STARTED EARLY!: Make sure you allow yourself at least two weeks to work on the grant; rushed, last minute applications often have errors that cause them to be disqualified.

VERIFY YOUR NONPROFIT STATUS: In order to receive an ECCF grant, your organization MUST have 501(c)(3) OR 509(a)(1), (2), or (3) status OR be a tax-exempt government agency or religious organization. If your organization doesn't have official IRS recognition as a nonprofit, you need to find an organization that does and that is willing to serve as your fiscal agent. Grant applications from organizations without verified tax-exempt status will NOT be considered.

MAKE SURE YOU'RE ELIGIBLE: Please read the ECCF Grantmaking Guidelines and to make sure your organization's proposal is eligible for grant funding. (This document is available for download on the ECCF website's “Grant Opportunities” page.)

KNOW YOUR HISTORY: On a related note, make sure your organization hasn't received previous ECCF grants for the same program or purchase (or a similar one). Because funds are limited, ECCF will not usually fund consecutive grants that are substantially the same.

COLLABORATE: Before you start a program from scratch, make sure you're not duplicating another organization's services. Some overlap isn't a deal breaker as long as you work with the other organization(s) to effectively administer those services. Showing that you cooperate with other agencies, schools, and people is very important since it enhances your program's sustainability and ensures that your application won't be disqualified for duplicating existing services.

As You Write

READ THE QUESTIONS! Make sure your responses are clear, concise, and answer the questions on the application form. If you're using snippets of previously written grants, be absolutely certain you've adjusted them to answer the questions on THIS application.

ESTABLISH THE NEED: Explain WHY the funding is needed. Use data to prove that your proposal addresses a strong community need. This can include quotes from articles, demographic studies, census data, and your own organization's experience. You won't have a lot of room to work with, so include specific and relevant information to show how your proposal will help solve a significant community problem.

Grant Writing Tips

MAKE YOUR MISSION CLEAR: Grant reviewers want to know what your organization's mission statement is and how your grant proposal will further that mission; your application could be endangered if your mission is missing or confusingly worded.

CLARIFY YOUR GOALS: Make sure that the grant proposal's goals are specific— explain what will be accomplished and what impact the funding will have. In particular, you MUST show how any grant funding you receive will benefit the Eau Claire area.

MEASURE YOUR GOALS: You must clearly show reviewers how you'll evaluate your proposal's effectiveness. You should have clear and realistic methods (numbers served, surveys administered to clients, etc.) of measuring success. You should also show how you'll use your measurements to continually improve your program and/or organization.

USE CLEAR WORDING AND SPECIFIC NUMBERS: "Our program will serve 3 meals a day to 45 clients for one year" is much more specific than "Our program will feed a lot of people." Also, avoid jargon and acronyms that might confuse someone outside your organization.

CHOOSE YOUR CATEGORY IF YOU'RE APPLYING FOR A COMMUNITY GRANT: In your application, make a strong connection between your request and one of our grant categories. Even if your application is relevant to more than one, you can only choose ONE category when you apply, so choose the best one. Categories are:

- Arts and Culture (visual and performing arts, music, museums, literature)
- Education (education and training)
- Nature and Recreation (environment, recreation, animals)
- Health and Human Services (social services, accessibility, programs for elders, veterans' needs)

By The Numbers

CHECK YOUR NUMBERS! Your request for ECCF grant funding in the budget section should equal the amount of your overall grant request in the "Proposal Overview" section.

DEMONSTRATE YOUR FINANCIAL SAVVY: Your budget should indicate that you've thought carefully about your finances. You should be able to show what specifically the dollars will be used for and how you've ensured the most bang for the donors' bucks.

ASK FOR WHAT YOU CAN GET: You should ONLY ask for dollars that the granting organization is willing to fund. Many grantors, including ECCF, specifically exclude certain expenses, such as those for travel and previously incurred expenses. Your application could be disqualified if you request money for an excluded expense.

DON'T ASK FOR TOO MUCH: Make sure your budget request does NOT exceed what the grantor is willing to fund. Check the information for the grant cycle you're considering to see if there is a maximum request amount.

PRIORITIZE: Sometimes funders can't award the full amount of the grant, so if you list the priorities of your project, they may be able to at least fund the most important budget items.

BE SUSTAINABLE: Funders want to know what will happen after grant funds have been used. Demonstrate how you can maintain your program and/or organization after the grant dollars have been spent.

After The First Draft Is Done

PROOFREAD: Check for errors in spelling, grammar, and punctuation; although your content might be wonderful, typos can easily undermine your organization’s credibility. In the process, check for wordy passages and try to streamline them. Then, find the biggest curmudgeon in your life (ideally one that’s unfamiliar with your organization) and have him or her proofread.

IF YOUR GRANT GETS FUNDED

AGREE TO YOUR GRANT: You’ll receive a Grant Acceptance Agreement detailing the terms and conditions of your grant. Even though your grant will have been approved, the money can’t be released until the Executive Director (or equivalent) of your organization signs it. Pay particular notice to the publicity clause toward the bottom; it requires you to acknowledge your grant in any relevant publicity materials your organization might produce.

SPEND THE MONEY WISELY: Always use the funds you receive for their intended purpose. You’ll need to submit a Grant Report within 30 days of the grant period’s end, and you’ll need to prove that you spent the money according to the budget in your grant proposal. Minor deviations—for example, if a budgeted item proves slightly less or more expensive than you’d anticipated—don’t pose a significant problem. However, major deviations from your initial proposal—for example, using the grant to pay staff instead of to purchase the computer you’d requested—could result in your organization having to return the grant money. If you anticipate a major deviation in your project spending, contact ECCF at least 60 days before the end of the grant period. You can write a letter of request asking for a grant extension and/or a re-direction of funds to a similar purpose, but the ECCF Board of Trustees must have time to approve the request before the end of the grant period.

KEEP YOUR RECEIPTS: You’ll need them for your Grant Report!

SHARE YOUR STORY: ECCF is always happy to share the story of its grantees. Please tag ECCF in social media posts about your grant and share directly to ECCF’s Facebook page so we can make more people aware of your great work. Also, try contacting local newspapers, television stations, and social media networks. They might do a story about you, which would create free publicity. (Don’t forget to acknowledge your grant if that happens, though!)
